

Construction Fatalities Supplement, 2007
Washington FACE Program
January 2, 2008

In 2007 there were 16 construction fatalities in Washington State (defined by the company's NAICS code) as counted by the WA FACE program (Figure 1). There were four fall incidents and four machine-related incidents in 2007. There were two each of struck-by, motor vehicle, and electrocution incidents (Figure 2). There was also one explosion and one tunneling locomotive incident. The incidents were distributed among types of construction contractors (Figure 3). The 16 fatalities in construction during 2006 were distributed across types of occupations (Figure 4). King County had the most incidents with six, followed by Skagit with two and eight other counties with one incident each (Table 1).
